

Rexnord® TableTop® and MatTop® Chains

Rexnord® abrasion resistant DKA material

Several applications in glassworks and beverage filling lines combine an abrasive environment with the need for smooth container handling. Often these applications can not be easily lubricated to neutralize the effect of the hard abrasive particles in the environment. Therefore special materials can be part of a custom made solution. This is why, besides several other specialized high performance materials, Rexnords material portfolio is now completed with DKA aramid reinforced acetal material.

DKA aramid reinforced acetal offers a superior wear behavior compared to standard plain acetal resins in combination with a low coefficient of friction. This is mainly caused by the excellent tribological properties of the base material. On top of that aramid fibers give DKA it's specific performance properties.

The DKA material is suitable for handling any kind of container but will most commonly be found in dry running glass handling applications. Combining the A-class Rexnord product line with it's robust and wear resistant product designs and Magnetflex® curve technology and DKA material offers new application possibilities in this field.

DKA material is available for the most common products for glassworks and beverage filling lines from Rexnord's extensive product range. And in combination with Rexnords balanced material portfolio this ensures the best possible solutions for your application. Like other Rexnord materials the DKA material is molded with the highest care and newest injection molding technologies ensuring the reliable Rexnord quality standard and therefore optimum productivity of your production line.
